Materials on MH recognition and management available from MHAUS include MH Procedure Manuals designed for MH preparedness in either hospital, ambulatory surgery center, or office-based surgery, MH Transfer of Care Guideline for Ambulatory Surgery Centers, Emergent Transfer Plan and Checklist for an MH crisis in Office-based facilities, MH Mock Drill Kits to guide your MH Drill, and our MH Prep Check program brings an MH Expert directly to your facility to assess your MH plan of action and leaves documentation for the next regulatory surveyor visit.

MHAUS maintains and regularly updates a website at www.mhaus.org

Whether you are a Healthcare Professional or Patient, we offer a wealth of MH information and education on our website. Our visitor's experience ranges from casual browsing for basic MH info and resources, to logging in for additional access, or to become an MHAUS member to take advantage of membership benefits. The website shares:

- Frequently Asked Questions for both medical professionals and patients.
- In-service Training via online subscription (or with DVD hard copy) and provides a presentation on MH recognition and treatment in a PowerPoint format with audio.
- List of facilities (city and state) whose staff have enough interest in MH to successfully complete the online test of MH knowledge in order to be a resource for MH-susceptibles and families when considering sites for their surgery.

MH Mock Drill Kit outlines the process and MH Scenarios for your facility. Adding an MH Mock Drill Call will enhance the reality of the MH training!

The North American MH Registry of MHAUS (NAMHR) is the research arm of MHAUS at University of Florida in Gainesville, FL. Maintains stores and analyzes MH-susceptible (MHS) and similar syndrome data in a central database, seeks to improve diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of MH. Contact them at 800-274-7899.

Neuroleptic Malignant Syndrome Information Service (NMSIS) is a subgroup of the MHAUS organization and serves as an international resource center for knowledge on neuroleptic malignant syndrome in addition to other heat-related disorders and drug side effects. NMSIS has a website at www.nmsis.org and offers assistance to psychiatrists, ED personnel and social workers who may deal with patients experiencing this debilitating disorder, and their family.
